WHAT: Elbert County Commission Meeting on Oil and Gas Regulations

WHEN: Wednesday, February 12, 9 a.m.

WHERE: old courthouse in Kiowa (second floor) 215 Comanche St., Kiowa, Co 80117

This coming Wednesday, February 12, the Elbert County Commissioners will be meeting at 9 a.m. to consider changes to county oil and gas regulations and a proposed Standard Memorandum of Understanding.

The Elbert County Commissioners rejected proposed oil and gas regulations in July, 2013, but have agreed to let the Planning Department revisit the matter and consider new oil and gas regulations. It is therefore particularly important to take advantage of this new opportunity to comment.

Please use this alert to send your message today, and please attend the Commissioners meeting. It is important to let county officials know that Elbert County residents favor strong oil and gas regulations that protect public health, safety, and quality of life.

We also encourage you to share this link on social media and invite others to join in advocating for oil and gas regulations that protect human health, quality of life, and property values.

Protect Elbert Co. air, water, land and health

Dear [Decision Maker],

Personalize your message

Elbert County needs strong oil and gas regulations to protect our air, water, land, public health, safety, and quality of life. We are asking you to protect Elbert County residents by adopting regulations which would prohibit open pits for toxic produced water and prohibit spraying of toxic produced water to mitigate dust on county roads.

We also urge you to support citizen-drafted MOUs which would protect Elbert County citizens by increasing drilling set-backs to 1320 feet from homes, require green completion systems to reduce air emissions, require operators to notify residents within a mile of production activities, and increase baseline water sampling.

Please do everything in your power to ensure that Elbert County residents and their property are protected from the toxic spills, groundwater

Sincerely,
