

What has become easier these past few years is determining who these Democrats are. And it's all bad.

Who Democrats Really Are

By Ray DiLorenzo — Bio and Archives -- September 21, 2024

In recent years, we have detected that Democrats and Republicans are increasingly finding themselves further apart politically, socially, and spiritually. I don't find Republicans have taken any major steps away from what they always believed in, God, family, and country.

Democrats, on the other hand, are unrecognizable as to what they were 50 or 60 years ago. Like Republicans, Democrats believed in equality, democracy, a strong military, and were anti-communist.

Democrats no longer talk equality, they talk equity

According to Pew Research, Republicans that are certain or fairly certain that there is a God are at 90%. Democrats that are certain or fairly certain there is a God are at 76%. That may not seem low, but it was low enough for the Democrats to fight like hell (no pun intended) about whether to proclaim God in their party platform. It gets more contentious every year.

Democrats no longer talk equality, they talk equity. Democrats no longer talk capitalism, they talk democratic socialism, whatever that is. Democrats no longer talk law and order, they talk justice, justice. The definition of that remains unclear. Democrats no longer talk free speech, they now push censorship laws.

Democrats no longer talk men and women; they talk LGBTQIA, lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer/questioning, intersex, and asexual. And we are told there are many more. These Democrats have a complete devotion to all things sexual. Some states, such as Minnesota, where Governor Walz resides, have worked hard to establish a 'Trans Refuge State' to allow procedures that are illegal in other states for both children and adults.

It seems to me their core and pre-occupation is in their sexual identity, where it should be God.

The anger of the Dems knows no bounds

These differences are monumental, and they are dangerous. Many Democrats say we have a constitutional crisis. And we do. Christian principles formed the foundation of our government's design. Democrat beliefs are incompatible. It's a breakdown of Western culture and Democrats are at the forefront. Our nation's foundation hinges on nearly everyone's agreement on the fundamental principles established long ago: life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness under God. To the dismay of Democrats, we place our trust in God, as He is the creator of our freedom and inalienable rights. The Left wants to replace God with themselves.

Believe me, you don't want to place your freedom and liberty in the hands of any fickle man or woman. I can't make it any simpler.

With every passing year, the differences grow wider and are left unchecked; without a reason to remain unified, our country's existence as founded becomes in doubt.

The anger of the Dems knows no bounds. To win the next election—or any election—they will say and do anything. Stories of election interference and fraud have been leaking out for the past several years regarding the 2020 election.

Whether they had anything to do with the two attempted assassinations, I don't know, but the Democrats' history of assassinations and attempted assassinations goes back far. The lack of interest from the deep state, particularly the FBI and DOJ, is leading to the emergence of conspiracy theories and growing suspicions.

Democrat political language has been alarming for some time

Democrat political language has been alarming for some time, 'Trump plans to execute a coup on January 6, 2025.' Says Rep. Dan Goldman (D-CA). "Trump is a danger to our country." Says Hillary Clinton after the 2nd assassination attempt. "It's time to put Trump in a bullseye." President Biden. "Trump parrots Hitler." Biden/Harris HQ. Hillary Clinton in 2023: "A 2024 Trump victory would be the end of our country as we know it." "Trump is an existential threat to our nation."

Comparisons to Hitler have been made as far back as Trump's first term. Reps. James Clyburn (D-SC) and Jerry Nadler (D-NY) let loose in 2019 on President Trump in response to his tough talk on illegal immigration. The Biden White House uses the name of Hitler quite liberally when observing Trump. I'm not sure what they base that on, but a comparison between Trump and Biden would clearly demonstrate a significant difference in leadership strength and results.

Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez (AOC) blasted Trump for his 'Hitler-like concentration camps' on the border. In reality, Trump's detention centers were infinitely better than Obama's or Biden's. At the very least, Trump showed a major effort in border control and prevention by building several hundred miles of border wall and not allowing illegals to stay while waiting for their hearings. In comparison, Trump's border policies reduced illegal immigration to a trickle.

Democrats forget we have a Trump presidency to refer back to. During the Trump years, hundreds of millions of people experienced a significant increase in freedom, opportunity, financial, and public security.

Democrats do not care about the strength of our country

Foreign enemies being afraid of Trump is not a bad thing. On the contrary. No one cared what Biden did or said. He was and remains a weak president. You can blame the wars around the world on his feeble leadership. Evil will always find a weak spot, and they discovered a big one.

Democrats do not care about the strength of our country. They only care about the strength of their rice bowl, their power base, and their profitable political corporate business. Trump represents a threat to that business. As Jeanine Pirro said on Fox, Democrats represent politics over people.

What Trump represents is revolutionary. He is changing the country to a citizen-centered country. How radical. Trump's rallies are now legendary for being always packed with Americans who just want the American dream. The pursuit of happiness is the ability to see your dreams realized with a bare minimum of government interference.

Kamala Harris keeps repeating meaningless phrases like "I'm from the middle class" and "creating an opportunity economy." She will not explain what all this means, and she says it ad-nauseam. Any intelligent observer would have to conclude that she is not terribly intelligent or is hiding behind the clock, trying to wait it out. She is not articulate, and the image of her negotiating with Putin or Xi Jinping is frightening. Word salad will never give you meat, only lettuce.

They say they want peace, but they have created conditions for war on three fronts

Trump is mixing with real people. He understands what they need in order to succeed and is detailed in his plan. Harris is working hard at 'conceptualizing' her economic plan, memorizing talking points and using them verbatim everywhere she speaks without as much as a word change.

What is required is an examination of what Democrats say and what they do. They talk freedom and yet talk censorship or criminal prosecution for 'what they consider' misleading information. They say they want a closed border, yet they allowed 21 million unvetted illegal immigrants to enter our country, with too many of them murdering and thieving their way across America. They speak morality and allow every form of human depravity. They say they want peace, but they have created conditions for war on three fronts. They talk about freedom and democracy, and they propose increases in already high taxes. I can't think of anything more conducive to a loss of freedom than taking away one's financial security. They preach honest elections but will not allow laws that will require voter ID. Democracy is worthless without honest elections.

Their 180-degree turn on important issues during this campaign season is dizzying.

What has become easier these past few years is determining who these Democrats are. And it's all bad.
